Domaine de Beausejour's 'Les Silex', shines a pale gold color with greenish highlights. A pronounced, expressive and complex nose of exotic fruits such as grapefruit, apricot preserves, and white pepper. On the palate you will enjoy a fresh, smooth, vibrant, body with a velvety texture. The finish is medium-length and leaves you only wanting more.

On the banks of the Cher River, the vineyards of 25-year-old vines on average, of Domaine Beausejour stretch over 20 hectares of top soils comprised of clay-limestone and sand and subsoils of clay and flint. This flinty soil is known as "Silex" (one of the three main soil subtypes found in Sancerre) and produces a long-lived wine with a distinctive stony minerality with gunflint quality.

After the grapes are harvested, sorted and pressed, the juice goes through temperature-controlled fermentations followed by aging on its lees with regular bâtonnage (lees stirring).

In the appellation of Touraine, located in the heart of the Loire Valley, Philippe Trotignon, follows in his family's footsteps as a fourth-generation wine-maker. Philippe took over the reins in 2002 from his parents Jean-Paul and Colette, and strives to maintain the ecologically sustainable farming practices his parents instilled in both him and the domaine.
